COMPANY AND ORGANIZATION NEWS

SS&TP CAC Gathers at Annual Meeting

The SS&TP Community Advisory Council (CAC) gathered in person in April, two years after the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, at Cooperative Educational Services (CES). Presentations were made by Steve Conyne of BlueHalo, Amanda Velarde of Albuquerque Public Schools, Jim Bordegaray of the New Mexico State Land Office, Scott Throckmorton of Argus Investment Realty, and Sal Perdomo of Titan Development about their land updates and building projects in the Park. In addition, David Chavez of CES gave an overview of their organization and tour of their facility.

Museum Holds Groundbreaking Ceremony for New Addition

The National Museum of Nuclear Science & History held a groundbreaking ceremony for the Jerry L. Adams Museum Artifact Center. This new building, named in memory of a former Board of Trustee member, will mark the first addition since the museum opened in the SS&TP in 2009. Also, the Museum's board was one of three nonprofit boards to win in the Best Boards category at the Albuquerque Business First 2022 Philanthropy Awards.

OneTen° Appoints New Partner

Hunter Greene, a former University of New Mexico basketball player, is OneTen° Capital's newest partner for Fund II. He is an entrepreneur and owner of multiple businesses, a commercial real estate broker, and announces UNM basketball games for KKOB-AM. Hunter's role at the investment firm is to help businesses headed by members of underserved communities and introduce investors to opportunities that fit their profile and needs. OneTen° focuses on early-stage technology startups based in New Mexico and the Rocky Mountain region.

Oso Negro Purchases Two Buildings

Oso Negro Capital purchased two buildings in the SS&TP from Morgan Properties. One of the two buildings is now available for lease to one company or multiple companies as flex space from 3,000 to 36,000 square feet. Brokers Dave Hill and DJ Brigman of NAI SunVista are representing the building. The Technology Leadership High School occupies the second building.
