COMPANY AND ORGANIZATION NEWS

BlueHalo Names New Leadership

Mary Clum is the new Corporate Executive Vice President and Sector President of BlueHalo Labs Innovation Center, located in the SS&TP. Mary will oversee the company's product innovation and manufacturing operations, bringing more than 20 years of industry experience to her new role along with a passion for the organization's people and mission. Prior to this role, Mary served as Vice President of Technical Solutions and Systems at BlueHalo since 2019. The company is actively hiring to fill engineering and functional team positions at their SS&TP campus.

SS&TP Participates in NAIOP District 9 Bus Tour

Representatives of the SS&TP Program Office and Sandia Science & Technology Park Development Corporation participated in a guided bus tour put on by NAIOP, the Commercial Real Estate Development Association, and City Councilor Renée Grout around District 9, Grout's district, which includes the SS&TP. The tour highlighted the many business development opportunities in the area. There were nearly 50 people who attended, including New Mexico State Land Office Commissioner Stephanie Garcia Richard, City of Albuquerque Foothills Area Commander Shawn Garrett, industry professionals, and community leaders interested in development.

New Members Join the SS&TP CAC

Jennifer Hayden, new Executive Director of the National Museum of Nuclear Science & History and Gabe Mounce, new Director of the Tech Engagement Office at the Air Force Research Laboratory in New Mexico joined the SS&TP Community Advisory Council (CAC). Jennifer fills the position vacated by long-time member of the CAC, Jim Walther, who recently retired after 26 years as the Museum Director. Gabe replaces Matthew Fetrow, former Director of the Tech Engagement Office, and a long-time member of the CAC. The SS&TP CAC provides guidance and input on current and future activities for the Park.

NM MEP Offers Services to Manufacturing Companies

Linda von Boetticher, SS&TP Program Leader, and Judy Hendricks, New Mexico Small Business Assistance (NMSBA) Project Manager visited Jennifer Sinsabaugh, CEO of New Mexico Manufacturing Extension Partnership (New Mexico MEP), to learn more about their facilities, capabilities, and services. They were shown manufacturing technologies such as robotic devices and 3D printing processes. They also experienced virtual and augmented reality demonstrations. Jennifer is a member of the SS&TP CAC and an NMSBA Contract Project Representative. New Mexico MEP offers New Mexico companies training and the opportunity to experience new technology.
