

SANDIA SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY PARK

August 2012

I am very excited to establish a branch office in Albuquerque and to be a part of the Sandia Science & Technology Park (SS&TP) infrastructure. In the short time we have been here, I have found the program staff to be very supportive in all areas. The proximity to Sandia National Laboratories (SNL) and Kirtland Air Force Base is the key reason for locating within the SS&TP. However, I quickly learned the Park offers so many other advantages.

Recent Events

The National Museum of Nuclear Science & History and New Mexico School for the Blind and Visually Impaired
The two organizations announced a new program, Park Promises, at a recent SS&TP Company Leadership Luncheon held at the Museum. This program encourages Park companies and individuals to help improve educational opportunities at the Museum and School. By designating these non-profit organizations as chosen charities, Park employees can have a positive impact by supporting the growth of their neighbors. For more information contact Jim Walther, Museum Director, at jwalther@nuclearmuseum.org.
