

SANDIA SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY PARK

September 2012

The Sandia Science & Technology Park (SS&TP) is a major contributor to the city's economy. It's been a home run. The city of Albuquerque is proud to have been an active partner in this important job-creation initiative since its inception.

Richard J. Berry, City of Albuquerque Mayor

Institutions such as the SS&TP are instrumental in creating economic stability within the region. The Park continues to contribute to our nation through innovation and technology, and to our region through increased local investment, area revitalization and spin-off jobs.

Maggie Hart Stebbins, Bernalillo County Commissioner-District 3

33 Companies and Organizations, 2474 Employees, $351 Million of Investment

Recent Events

Open House – The SS&TP held an Open House recently at the Steve Schiff Auditorium on Kirtland Air Force Base (KAFB) to showcase the products and capabilities of Park companies and organizations to representatives from Sandia National Laboratories (SNL), Air Force Research Lab, and KAFB. The event was hosted by SNL's Small Business Utilization Department and the SS&TP Program Office and sponsored by the Sandia Science & Technology Park Development Corporation.

Economic Impact Assessment News Conference – The SS&TP hosted a news conference on August 28 to announce the results of an economic impact report by the Mid-Region Council of Governments (MRCOG). MRCOG assessed the research park's economic impact from its creation in May 1998 through the end of 2011. Speakers at the news conference included Steve Rottler, SNL; Dewey Cave, MRCOG; Sherman McCorkle, Sandia Science & Technology Park Development Corporation; Mayor Richard J. Berry, City of Albuquerque; Commissioner Maggie Hart Stebbins, Bernalillo County; and Jackie Kerby Moore, SS&TP. Thank you to Kendra Watkins and Aaron Sussman from MRCOG for preparing the economic impact report. The results of the report are shown on the back of this newsletter.
